

The application asks us to sign up when we first launch it, or we may just keep using Google. A homepage will appear when we join up where we may enter our location. The type of cake, such as a birthday cake or a customized cake, must be chosen afterwards. The user can add the cake's image if they wish to alter it. Later, the size should be chosen. Any message or name can be printed on the cake. After that, the cake can be put in the cart. When a user has finished shopping, they can check out, or they can keep shopping and we'll go back to the type of cake each time so they can add the cake of their choices. Once they've finished selection, they can head to the checkout. By clicking "place order," customers can confirm the order through preview that is provided. The order number and ETA will then be shown.
